Voices From the Past

“The children of the elder race of Earth began to change. They were not able to be taught even to speak. They desired only to eat, fornicate, rave, and kill those that possessed any form of reason. Such was their hunger that they ate carrion and even each other. All this happened as the Earth's skies were darkened by ash and smoke of hundreds of erupting volcanoes, and the planet was shaken by violent earthquakes.

When we found the means to look into the ways of Earth once again, we found those of human kind who did survive the numerous geological calamities, did so only because of the instincts of motherhood and other noble traits of love that were able to prevail amidst the insanity.

I myself have looked into the vacant eyes of those survivors of Earth's elder race and other races of the solar system that sought false refuge on the planet. They feared me, though I would have done them no harm. As time passed, some of the good ways of man (those that please the Elohim) began to resurface, but by this time all memories of the past were lost. At times we that are not of the Earth, attempted to tell those of the troubled world of these things. With these words we try once again.

When my services are required I enter the “Frequency Barrier” of the planet Earth , and test its effects. I am pleased to see that the Earth is healing well. This provides me with the hope that at sometime in the future my home world will also be restored and support life once again. Believe me when I say there are more of my kind that have envied your ignorance of these matters.”

“The princes and less exalted of the solar system came with those of their households, though unwelcome by the natives of the Earth and the immigrants that came before them. It was a time when the music and food of some left a bad taste in the ears and mouths of others. There was no order and too many sought spiritual guidance from false gods, and also sought protection from the strongest, who took their children as slaves in payment for their services.

There were times when hundreds of our vimana vessels raised great dust clouds as they landed to unload their charitable cargoes. Though we came with concern and love we did so secretly, to avoid viewing the degradation that so greatly troubled our souls.”

“I have memories of the most ancient of ancient times. My soul was young and danced on the firm foundation of my world. People were happy and the morning stars sang together. Then those who love the ways of the great deceiver shattered their planetary nest and brought terrible grief to us and to the angels. This deed also blinded the minds of those of the now third world that is called Earth. These are the words of Omathra daughter of Vey.”

---

Before the time that the planet known as Maldek exploded and the Frequency Barrier began, the Earth had only one continent and a native population of about 30 million people.

The planet Earth was not governed by its natives, but by those of the fifth planet who were called Maldecians (bad tongue / liars).

It was known at the time that the energy of creation called “Vril” existed and that all other forms of energy, such as that which animates life were actually lesser forms of this supreme force. Vril energy is believed to be unusable by humans.

The Maldecians devised a plan to concentrate the creative Vril energy of the Earth and transmit it to their home world.

In order to accomplish this act of piracy, they enlisted the services of a group that originated outside of the solar system. They were called Gracians.

The Gracians were spiritually dedicated to the natural system of mathematics which nature uses to describe itself (sacred geometry). They enjoyed using this system of sacred numbers in the design of buildings such as “pyramids.”

THE STAR SHAKERS

“As was our custom, we gathered on the roof of the temple to pray and make music. We were of such an age that women gave us honor by walking among us unveiled. The plaza below was filled with visitors from many other worlds that came to hear the words of the Watchers. They would be disappointed this day, for the Radiant Ones had all left to assemble in the land of Mir to view the Great Pyramid they had raised for the sake of glory.

The day before, a legion of gaily robed elders of the Watcher race had arrived from their world which is called Maldek. I myself watched servant sims come and go from their spacecraft for the purpose of seeing to their comfort. At dusk I watched with my wife Dovinta as their silver craft rose to first appear as a moving star and then pass out of sight over the eastern horizon.

It was then the day of the summer solstice, and there would be much feasting and merry making throughout the night. We of the temple would not join the revelry, but would talk and enjoy the starry sky till dawn.

Nearing the eleventh hour of the night there was a great light that appeared in the northern sky, and our spirits were stabbed with spears of foreboding and overwhelming concern. The light grew larger and brighter, and birds flew in circles, frightened from their nests by the deafening sounds made by other animals, and perhaps by the silent sounds that are made by the souls of men.

By dawn the only sounds that were heard were the inquiring voices of those who gathered below. In many languages I heard them ask: What caused the great light? What did it mean? Was it an omen? Then the high priest Savacanopy spoke to those gathered, and advised that they come into the temple, or seek a quiet place to pray, and wait for the Watchers to return, for they were wise in the ways of heaven. As he departed I heard him murmur a prayer requesting of God permission to cry.

Before sunset my sons Somencar and Adthro entered our home. They had been gone for several months serving the Watchers in the land of Mir. They related to me a strange story: The elders of Maldek joined others of their race at that place where the Great Pyramid stood. With them they brought bundles of jeweled wooden rods they called "Vril Sticks," as well as vessels of water and soil from their home world. There were also vessels of soil, and water from this, our home world, stored at the place in a white tent.

A Watcher youth wearing a robe bearing strange symbols walked among his brethren receiving their embraces and kisses. Somencar also told me that he was one of those that took the vessels of soil and water into the pyramid and placed them as instructed in the 27 pairs of slots that existed in the curbs of the pyramid's Grand Gallery. The vessels were alternated water of Maldek, soil of Earth, water of Earth, soil of Maldek. Two of the Watcher elders stood side by side, one by each slot, and held his Vril stick inside of his assigned vessel. The Watcher youth climbed the gallery and whispered to each in their ears. What he imparted is unknown. At the exact time of the summer solstice, each pair of Watcher elders without removing their Vril sticks from their particular vessel tipped them toward each other until they touched. When this was done the Earth shook violently and a red pillar of whirling fire rose from the pyramid's apex. Those on the surrounding plane were terrified and cried out to God. They also saw a great light appear in the sky. The pyramid became very hot and drove those gathered about away from it. The pillar of fire continued to reach skyward for many more hours and then gradually receded.

A circle of dead Watchers were found later in the white tent. They had stripped naked and had taken their own lives.

My sons told me that Crennamer the trader who dealt much with those who built the pyramids of Mir, came upon them, and offered to bring them home and into my presence. Crennamer told my sons that a grieving and tearful Watcher had told him that they in error had destroyed their home world. Crennamer said that: “This must be true, as all know that the Watchers are wise to the ways of heaven.”

Somencar and Adthro both suspected that it was Crennamer that provided the Radiant Ones with the poisonous potions that took their lives.

I lived for nearly 14 more years after the world called Maldek exploded and shook the foundations of the stars. During that time tremendous, cataclysmic events occurred on the Earth in the form of earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and great floods. I was spared the loss of my mind, where as, those that lived longer were not as fortunate.

At that time of life I did not know why the Watchers did what they did, or in what way they made their dreadful error. Even after many lifetimes since, I think about that time and pray to God for permission to cry.”

Recently it has been determined that the three largest pyramids at Giza, Egypt were sized and spaced from each other in order to replicate the stars in the constellation of “Orion.”

It has been learned that when the orbiting planet Maldek entered the constellation of Orion on the day of the summer solstice, the Maldecians attempted to transmit the Earth’s Vril energy to Maldek. This is to say that they used the three stars of Orion as a sighting device. When the stars were aligned correctly with the three pyramids at Giza they took the fatal step.

EARTH

MALDEK

The Great Pyramid was constructed at the place which was in the direct center of the land mass of the entire planet. Please recall that at the time of its construction there was only one continent. Even after this continent broke into different parts this spot still holds the distinction of being situated on the line of latitude that has the most land on it, as well as the line of longitude that has the greatest amount of land.

Originally, as well as presently, the Great Pyramid is situated over a spot called a vortex. Vril energy is drawn to places on the planet where a vortex exists. Native Americans refer to these places as “Medicine Wheels.”

THE GREAT PYRAMID AND FIBONACCI LOGARITHMIC SPIRAL

The natural form of a Fibonacci logarithmic spiral is created accurately in the illustration above when the spiral form is dictated by the corners of successive larger or smaller (viewed either way) phi proportions.

Many forms of life express the Fibonacci spiral in their shells and protective horns. Many fossils of life now extinct, had shells that were shaped in the form of Fibonacci spirals.

The snail is one of the oldest-known forms of life. Fossils of the snail exist from the time of the beginning of the Ordovician Period, that existed between 440 and 500 million years ago.

Please refer to the illustration above as you read the following description of the passages and chambers of the Great Pyramid.

The passage that leads downward from the pyramid's entrance is called the "Descending Passage." At the lower end of the Descending Passage is a "Short Horizontal Passage" that leads into a room which has been named the "Subterranean Chamber." From the Subterranean Chamber to the south runs another horizontal passage that comes to a dead end. This passage is appropriately called the "Dead End Passage."

The upward running passage that stems from the Descending Passage is called "The Ascending Passage." This passage connects to "The Horizontal Passage to The Queen's Chamber." This horizontal passage contains, on its far end, a step that has been given the name: "The Mysterious Step." The room at the end of the Horizontal Passage is identified as the "Queen's Chamber." Please take note of the fact that this chamber has a pointed ceiling .

The upward running passage that intersects at its bottom, with both the Ascending Passage and the Horizontal Passage to the Queen's Chamber is called " The Grand Gallery."

The upper end of the Grand Gallery meets with a large step that is called the "Great Step." I am of the belief that the Great Step is actually a "hatch" that if opened would lead to other passages and chambers. More on this subject in a later section.

From the Great Step a "Small Horizontal Passage" enters an "antechamber." The grooved walls of this chamber probably held sliding slabs of stone that acted as counter weights for raising the Great Step (hatch).

At the Antechamber's far end is another “Short Horizontal Passage” that in turn enters “The King's Chamber.” In the King's Chamber is found the granite box which is called the “Coffer.”

There are 5 “Relieving Chambers” situated above the King's Chamber. The upper most of these chambers has a pointed ceiling.

At the bottom of the Grand Gallery there is a crudely dug shaft that travels an indirect path to a point that intersects the Descending Passage near its lower end. This shaft is called “The Well Shaft .”

During its course the Well Shaft enters and leaves a room like area that is called "The Grotto." The Well Shaft upper end terminates at the western base of the Grand Gallery and its lower end terminates near the bottom of the Descending Passage.

The following illustration depicts a cross-section of the Great Pyramid which reveals the structure's known internal passages and chambers.

I have superimposed the Fibonacci Spiral over the pyramid's inner features.

In my opinion this procedure has revealed that the architect planned all of the passages and chambers from the beginning to conform to the shape of a Fibonacci Spiral. This opinion is based on the following deductions:

1 (A): The pointed ceiling of the uppermost relieving chamber (above the King's Chamber) is even with the highest point in the spiral's curve. The pointed ceiling of the relieving chamber and that of the Queen's Chamber, may have acted as architectural points of reference during the pyramid's construction, very much like indication arrows in an architectural drawing.

2: The pointed ceiling of the Queen's Chamber points to the center of the spiral, which is logically the location of a yet undiscovered passage or chamber.

3 (B): Following the curve of the spiral to the right, it precisely separates The Grand Gallery from the Ascending Passage.

4 (D): Following the curve of the spiral further on to the right, it can be seen that it passes through the Subterranean Chamber and bottoms out on the floor of the Dead End Passage before it again turns upward. This is obviously the reason that this passage was built in the first place.

5 (F): The line that is projected from the center of the spiral down to the corner of the Phi proportioned square just clears the ceiling of the Queen's Chamber and intersects the Horizontal Passage to the Queen's Chamber at the exact location of the Mysterious Step.

6 (C): The Well Shaft to and from the Grotto was cut just inside of the spiral line. The spiral line crosses the Well Shaft precisely at the point where the shaft takes an abrupt turn downward.

Deduction number 6 indicates that whoever dug the Well Shaft was aware of the existence and location of the invisible spiral outline.

In the bedrock beneath the pyramid are a number of fissures (wide cracks). Notice, that the spiral line passes through two of the major fissures, as does the Well Shaft.

The pyramid's dynamic function, was to concentrate Vril energy in the shape of a Fibonacci Spiral. This force caused the fissures in the bedrock below the structure. Because of this, the Well Shaft might have been dug to dampen the force and thus stop any new fissures from manifesting, or those existing fissures from becoming larger.

The place marked by an X in the illustration is the location where an Egyptian and French team drilled a slanted hole in the west wall of the Horizontal Passage. They stopped drilling when they began to penetrate a wall of Turah limestone. There will be more said about this subject later on in this writing.

THE RA SYSTEM

The subject of the Great Pyramid and the units of measure which were used in its construction will be mentioned many times more in future parts of this writing. It will be shown in those writings that the mathematical system from which these units of measure were derived has also been used by the extraterrestrials in the production of “crop formations” and in the coding of 9 radio messages they transmitted to Earth in 1995.

ROSWELL

In 1947 an Extraterrestrial spacecraft was reported to have crashed in the vicinity of Roswell, New Mexico. This is another one of the UFO stories that need not be told again.

But, if the following reported details are true (I believe they are) then they could help to uncover certain things about Extraterrestrials that will contribute to a better understanding of them.

The ET craft was said to have had a crew of at least three or four diminutive humanoids. Military personnel that arrived on the crash scene found that only one of the aliens survived the crash.

From autopsies of the dead aliens and studies of the survivor, certain things about them are said to have been learned.

1: They had no digestive or reproductive organs. Their means of taking nourishment is not as yet known, outside of official channels.

2: The survivor who was named EBE (short for extraterrestrial biological entity) had the ability to communicate by means of “telepathy.” Eventually this individual weakened and died.

The reader may want to research the account of the meeting of Ebe and then Secretary of Defense James Forrestal. It is said that Ebe “telepathically” told Forrestal that “Many of our kind are coming.” Secretary Forrestal met his death when he “jumped” out of a hospital window. Many do not believe that he committed suicide.

It has been learned that there are several ebe types of extraterrestrials. Some appear as small humans (midgets) and there are two other types, that looked the same but, come in two sizes. Because of their gray colored skin they were named the small and tall “Grays.”

When the subject, of the appearance of extraterrestrials is discussed the strange looking Grays come to the mind of most people. The Grays are generally described as nefarious beings that are involved in abducting people and thereafter conducting medical experiments on them. More on this subject will be present in a later part of this writing.

Rarely are members of the majority of extraterrestrials races ever seen. If they were able to walk about on the Earth they would really stand out because the average height of a male is 8 feet. And I am sure that it will come as no surprise to learn that they look like us. Their life spans are reported to be several hundred years in length.

The Grays mentioned above were genetically engineered to physically function within the Frequency Barrier, and carry out tasks that the other type of aliens are unable to do within the Frequency Barrier, without becoming biologically affected.

The physiology of the non Grays is similar to ours. Some races have two hearts and in some cases three kidneys. The bottom line is that they can mate with us and produce children.

There will be more said about the Grays and the other type of extraterrestrials, after the existence of the “Universal Life Field” is described in another part of this writing.

After the data in part 7 is mentally digested, many of the subjects found in all the previous parts of this work will be reviewed in the light of this important data in order to establish additional credibility.

The majority of Extraterrestrial operations on the Earth pertain to obtaining information about how the Frequency Barrier is affecting every form of life that is in the slow process of re-evolving. From these studies they also determine when to place what was considered extinct plant and animal life back into the ecosystem.

In Part 7 we shall learn more about the Extraterrestrials and their exceptional mental advantages.
